Does It Pay The Farmer To Hold His Wheat

The question which constitutes the heading of this article has been asked and debated thousands of times and it still remains a most question in the minds of many people. Commissioners have investigated the grain market problem in practically all the great wheat growing countries of the world, and in this connection due consideration has been given to the effect on prices of the early marketing of the bulk of the wheat crop immediately following harvest. The prevailing opinion in the minds of most people has undoubtedly been that those farmers who, from force of circumstances, were compelled to rush their wheat to market were the losers thereby, while the man who could afford to hold it and watch the market stood to gain.

Practical and experienced farmers have become not only critical but rather resentful of writers in newspapers who essay the task of advising them to do what to do and what not to do. Arm chair farmers, like arm chair military strategists, are not popular, nor do they carry much weight, and possibly rightly so when they attempt to deal with practical farming problems. But in the matter of the marketing of wheat, men who never plowed a furrow or sowed an acre in their lives, but who have studied the question of marketing, the fluctuations of prices, and the harvest seasons around the world, are well qualified to speak in reply to the question at the head of this article. They are certainly in just as good a position to express an opinion in regard to it as any practical farmer, and possibly in a much better position to do so intelligently.

Of course, no hard and fast rule can be laid down because conditions vary from one year to another and circumstances arise beyond the control of mere mortals which upset any and all calculations and defy previous experience. For example, the man who sold wheat immediately following the outbreak of war in 1914 was the loser by so doing. It is, therefore, only possible to arrive at an intelligent answer to the question whether it pays the farmer to hold his wheat after harvest by taking the average run of prices over a period of normal years.

The Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis has recently issued a set of most interesting charts, one of which seeks to throw some light on the question. One pair of charts shows the variations in prices on the Chicago and Minneapolis markets covering the 45-year period from 1873 to 1919; another shows the monthly range of cash wheat prices in Minneapolis during the last ten years, while a fourth chart, dealing with the normal pre-war years of 1903 to 1913, shows whether a farmer stood to gain or lose by holding or selling his wheat as indicated by the Chicago prices which prevailed from month to month throughout this ten-year period.

Taking the August price in each year as a basis, the chart in question shows the fluctuations in price above or below the August price in the succeeding months until August again came round. The chart reveals the amazing fact that in only 25 months out of the 120 in this ten-year period would it have paid the farmer to hold his wheat as compared with selling at the August price. In other words, in 95 months out of the 120 there was a loss by selling wheat at other than the August price. On the average every month showed a loss, and these losses vary from about five cents to fourteen cents a bushel. It is further pointed out that if September prices, instead of August, had been selected as the basis for making the comparison the conclusions would not be changed.

This highly interesting chart, based as it is on authoritative figures from official records, shows that by selling in September instead of August throughout these ten years the farmer would have sustained an average loss of 5.1 cents per bushel; selling in October instead of August his average loss would have been 7.3 cents per bushel; selling in November the loss would have been 12.3 cents; in December 13 cents; in January 13.8; in February 12.3 cents; in March 13.6 cents; in April 14.1 cents; in May 12.7 cents; in June 10.7 cents; and in July 8.1 cents.

In arriving at these figures allowance has, of course, been made for the cost of storage, shrinkage in weight, and interest charges, but a farmer holding his wheat must pay all these, and he cannot, therefore, merely compare actual market prices at the time of harvest with the price quoted three or six months later.

Selling promptly in the fall of every year appears, therefore, to yield the farmer the best average price, judging by the experience of these ten normal pre-war years. In some years, of course, he would gain by holding his wheat, but these are the exceptional years and not the rule. In fact, his chances of loss through holding instead of prompt selling in the fall appear to be about four to one.

Why would a corporation sometimes wait until there is nothing to receive before asking for a receiver?

MUCH ILL-HEALTH DUE TO BAD BLOOD

If the Blood is Kept Rich and Red You Will Enjoy Health.

More disturbances to health is caused by weak, watery blood than most people have any idea of. When your blood is impoverished, the nerves suffer from lack of nourishment and you may be troubled with insomnia, neuritis, neuralgia or sciatica. Muscles subject to strain are under-nourished and you may have rheumatism or lumbago. If your blood is thin and you begin to show symptoms of any of these disorders try building up the blood with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills have a special action on the blood and as it becomes enriched your health improves. The value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in cases of this kind is proved by the experience of Mr. D. J. McDonald, North River Bridge, N.S., who says: "For some years I suffered severely with headaches, pains in the back and a run-down condition. At times the pain in my back would be so bad that I would sit up in bed all night. From time to time doctors were treating me, but did not give me more than temporary relief. And then one day when I was suffering terribly a neighbor came to see me, and urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. After taking two boxes I felt relief. I got five boxes more and before they were all gone I felt as though they were giving me new life, as in every way they built up and improved my health and strength. I am now working as a baker in a pulp mill, ten hours a day and feeling none the worse after my day's work. I say with pleasure that this condition is due to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail for 5 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SPEND A WINTER AT THE OLDS SCHOOL OF AGRICULTURE
Term Opens on October 27th, 1921.

The courses offered afford the best opportunity ever given farm boys and girls to obtain a practical education.

The school term occupies only the slack time on the farm.

The courses are free. Boarding and rooming accommodation are arranged for by the school management, and rates will be very reasonable.

The farm in connection with the school maintains a good selection of live stock for judging purposes, and the demonstration of feeding and housing methods, and the experimental work carried on during the summer provides the best and most recent material on crops and crop production.

The school is equipped for the teaching of the elementary agricultural sciences.

There has never been a greater demand for trained men in the agricultural field than there is to day. The uncertain conditions and values of all farm products at present make it essential that the successful farmer be equipped with every bit of available knowledge underlying the principles of production and marketing.

Every profession trains its men carefully in its own subjects—what is more essential to the future farmer than an agricultural training. Give the boy and girl a chance, it will pay in satisfaction, in the improvement of farming methods, and in money.

CHAPTER VIII.
Into The Night.

Harris and Allan drove straight to the engine, never looking back to see what became of the hired man. The way the farmer explained to his son what had taken place; that words had passed between them, but no blows had been struck, until Allan appeared on the scene.

"Well, if that's the way of it, I'm sorry I hit him," said the young man frankly, "and when I see him I'll tell him so. I punched him a good one, didn't I?—though, to be honest, he was hardly on his feet. But he sure landed me a stem-winder on the chin," he continued, ruefully rubbing that member, "so I guess we're about even."

"He might've broke your neck," said Harris. "You're too hot-headed, both of you. . . . I can't make out what got into you, but he wouldn't answer a civil question. Jim was a good man, too." Perhaps the disturbing suggestion entered Harris' mind that the question had been none too civil, and he was really beginning to feel that after all Jim might be the aggrieved party. But he crushed down such mental sedition promptly. "It don't matter how good a man he was," he declared, "as long as I pay the piper I'm goin' to call the tune."

"It puts us up against it for a waterman, though," says Allan, thoughtfully.

"So it does," admitted Harris, who up to that moment had not reflected that his hasty action in dismissing Travers would result in much more delay than anything else that had occurred. "Well, we'll have to get somebody else. We'll manage till noon, and then we'll better ride over to Grant's or Morrison's. They'll be able to lend a man or one of the boys for a day or two." It was significant that although Harris was planning a considerable venture with Rike, when he wanted a replacement he instinctively turned to his other neighbors, Grant and Morrison.

At noon Jim's clock was vacant, and the family sat down to dinner amid a depressing silence. No mention was made of the morning's incident until the meal was well advanced, when Harris, feeling that he ought in some way to introduce the subject, said: "Is Jim gone?"

"Yes, he's gone," blazed Beulah. "You didn't expect he'd want to kiss you good-bye, did you?"

"One in the family is enough for that treatment," put in Allan, whose swollen chin and stiff neck blushed him against Travers.

"He didn't, either. And if he did it's none of your business, you big —," she looked her brother straight in the face, her swollen eyes telling their own story, and repeated deliberately, "you big coward."

Allan bit his lip.

"You're about the only person, Beulah, that could say that and get off with whole skin. I suppose he told you I hit him before he was on his feet."

"Well, he didn't. He didn't say you hit him at all, but he couldn't deny it, so we know the truth. And we knew you must have taken some mean advantage, or you'd never have got near enough to leave a mark on him."

"Jim's quite a hero, all right. It's too bad he's gone."

"It's a good job he's gone," said Harris. "By the way Beulah talks things have gone far enough. I don't want my daughter marrying a farmer."

"Her grandmother's daughter did," said Mary Harris.

"Yes, I know, but things are different now. I look for something better for Beulah."

It was characteristic of Harris, as of thousands of others, that, although a farmer himself, he looked for something better for his daughter. He was resigned to Allan being a farmer; his intimate, daily relationship with his son struck from any possibility of separation. But for his daughter—no. He had mapped out no career for her; she might marry a doctor, lawyer, merchant, tradesman, even a minister, but not a farmer. It is a peculiarity of the agricultural class, that, among all professions, he holds his own in the worst repute. As a class he has educated himself to believe that everybody else makes an easy living off the farmer, and much as he may revile the present generation for doing so, he is anxious that his children should join in the good picking. In later years has come a gradually broadening conception that farming, after all, calls for brains as well as muscle, and that the man who can wrestle a successful living from Nature has as much right to hold up the head in the world as the experimenter in medicine or the lawyer playing blue-and-neck with Justice through the cracks in the Criminal Code. Herein is a germ of the cityward migration; the farmer himself looks for "something better" for his children.

"Jim was a good man," persisted his wife. "Don't you think you were — well, perhaps, a little hasty with him?"

Harris sat back. It was his wife's words, not his own. For years and more she had been faithful in the discharge of that duty. That she should suggest an opinion out of harmony with his indicated a lack of discipline, not very serious, perhaps, but a seed which if permitted to flourish, might develop into dangerous proportions.

"You're goin' to take his part, too? It's a strange thing if I can't handle my hired help without advice from the house."

Mary flushed at the remark. Any open quarrel with her husband, especially before the children—for she still thought of the man as coming to her left and right as "the children"—was more painful to her than any submission could have been. It would be so much easier to change the subject, to follow the line of least resistance, and forget the incident as quickly as possible. That had been her constant policy after the first few years of their married life. At first there had been troubles and difficulties, but she had gradually adjusted herself to her niche, and their lives had run smoothly together because she never interrupted the current of his life. But of late the children had been coming home to her that some time, somewhere, she must make a stand. But of late the children had fallen in line as long as only her own happiness was concerned, but if the future of her children was to be at stake, or if the justice of their dealings with others should be the issue, she would have to fight and fight it out to a finish. And, quite unbidden, a strange surge of defiance welled in her when her husband told her to let him go to mind her own business.

"I was under the impression we were managing this farm— together, you and I, John," she said, very calmly, but with a strange ring in her voice. "When we came West I understood it was to build our home. I didn't know it was just to be your home."

The look of surprise with which Harris greeted her words was absolutely genuine. A hot, stinging reproof sprang to his lips, but by a sudden effort he suppressed it. His wife's challenge, quiet, unfrilled, but with evidence of unshaking character behind it, in some way conjured something out of the past, and he saw her again, the young look restored to her youthful glory, and the careworn cheeks bloom with the colour of young maidhood as they had been in the gathering shadows that night when they swore to build their own home, and live their own lives and love each other, always, only, for ever and ever.

And yet, to let her defiance go unchecked, to have his authority challenged before his own children—it would be the beginning of dissolution, the first crumbling of collapse.

"We will talk about that some other time, Mary," he said. "If Jim had answered my question fairly, as he had a right to, instead of beating around the bush, I might've let him off. But when I wanted to know what kept him so simply past me, makin' a fool of me and rubbin' it in with that infernal smile of his."

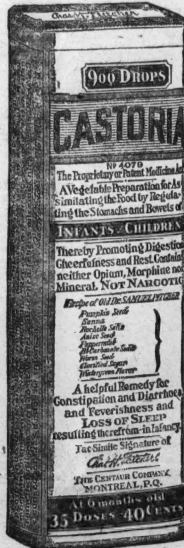

"So that's what started it!" exclaimed Beulah. "Well, I'll tell you what kept him, if he wouldn't. The cattle got into the oats through a break in the fence, and I couldn't get them out, and the dog went sky-lying over the prairie after a rabbit, and just as I was beginning to— to— condense over

Honest Advertising.

THIS is a topic we all hear now-a-days because so many people are inclined to exaggerate. Yet has any physician told you that we claimed unreasonable remedial properties for Fletcher's Castoria? Just ask them. We won't answer it ourselves, we know what the answer will be.

That it has all the virtues to-day that was claimed for it in its early days is to be found in its increased use, the recommendation by prominent physicians, and our assurance that its standard will be maintained.

Fletcher's Castoria is strictly a remedy for Infants and Children. Honestly advertised as such, without a claim for more than its over 30 years of use have amply proven. A Baby's remedy for Babies. And not an adult's remedy for all the family and all the ails that human flesh is heir to.

Special Care of Baby.

That Baby should have a bed of its own all are agreed. Yet it is more reasonable for an infant to sleep with grown-ups than to use a man's medicine in an attempt to regulate the delicate organism of that same infant. Either practice is to be shunned. Neither would be tolerated by specialists in children's diseases.

Your Physician will tell you that Baby's medicine must be prepared with even greater care than Baby's food.

A Baby's stomach when in good health is too often disarranged by improper food. Could you for a moment, then, think of giving to your sleeping child anything but a medicine especially prepared for Infants and Children? Don't be deceived.

Make a mental note of this—It is important, Mothers, that you should remember that to function well, the digestive organs of your Baby must receive special care. No Baby is so abnormal that the desired results may be had from the use of medicines primarily prepared for grown-ups.

"Aha!" said Harris, knowingly. "Well, I guess it's just as well as happened as it did. Jim was gettin' altogether too good at runnin' at your heels."

"That's all the thanks he gets for working late and early, like no other hired man in the county. All right, you and Allan can milk the cows tonight, for I won't—no!"

Harris was accustomed to his daughter's frankness, and as a rule paid little regard to it. He was willing enough to be flayed, in moderation, by her keen tongue; in fact, he took a secret delight in her unrestrained sallies, but that was different from defiance. He could, and did, submit any amount of cutting repartee, and felt a sort of pride in her vigour and recklessness, but he had no notion of countenancing open mutiny, even from Beulah.

"We'll talk about that some other time, too," he said. "And you'll milk the cows to-night as usual."

Beulah opened her eyes as if, though to answer, but closed them again, arose, and walked out of the kitchen. For her contrivance was over; the matter was cast. Her nature admitted of any amount of disparagement up to a certain point, but when the irresistible force crashed into the immovable object she wasted no wind on words. With her war was over.

Says Germany Must Go To Reparations Limit

Munich.—"We must go to the limit of our capacity with regard to reparations," Dr. Walter Rathenau, the German minister of reconstruction, declared before the congress of the Imperial Association of German Trades. "Complete fulfillment of the terms of the ultimatum will affect the world economically more severely than ourselves. Britain has three million and the United States six million unemployed. The more Germany must work the more the others cease working. What is needed is an international economic understanding."

The minister approved Winston Churchill's suggestion of co-operation as outlined in his Danube speech and said with regard to France:

"We must give goods; the problem is to substitute products for gold. We are to have a further conference with France regarding arrangements for deliveries of gold marks to the amount of seven billion in the course of four and a half years."

Munich and Berlin

Settle Dispute

Responsibility of Suppression of News papers Cautious Contention.

Munich.—An agreement reached at Berlin on Sept. 24 between representatives of the Bavarian and the Central German Government, has been adopted by the constitutional committee of the Bavarian Diet. This agreement is intended to effect an adjustment of the controversy which has been raging between Munich and Berlin for some time.

One of its provisions makes the authorities of individual German States responsible for the suspension, or suppression of newspapers. This was one of the principal causes of contention between the two Governments.

Refugees In Petrograd.

Riga.—Approximately 150,000 refugees from the famine districts of Russia now are in Petrograd, says a wireless message received here. Work has been found for only 1,000 of these refugees, the wireless adds.

CHOLERA INFANTUM THE FATAL DISEASE OF CHILDREN

Mothers should look well after their young ones during the hot summer months as this is the time of year when this summer complaint is most prevalent. It begins with a profuse diarrhoea, the stomach becomes irritated, vomiting and purging set in, and the matter ejected from the stomach has a bilious appearance; the child rapidly loses flesh and is soon reduced to great languor and prostration which in a great many cases terminates fatally.

To quickly effect the vomiting purging and diarrhoea

The Empire's Effort—And Sacrifice

One Man in Every Ten Laid Down Life In Great War.

From a return lately printed for the House of Commons, and published in the official Parliamentary report of May 5, we are now fully able to realize the magnitude of the effort made by the British Empire during the European war and how heavy was the sacrifice demanded of those who helped by land and sea in gaining the victory at the end of the long struggle. The total numbers of our sea and land forces that served during the war amounted to the huge total of something over nine millions of men; of these nine millions—nine millions, he remembered, of the very pick of the Empire—no fewer than one man out of every ten laid down his life. Having been killed in action, died of wounds, or died from disease due in some measure to the war. One man in every four was wounded, and one man out of every three became a casualty in one way or another—whether by death in action, from wounds or from disease, or by being wounded or taken prisoner. This is surely a very terrible proportion, and shows how and to what a dreadful extent the modern wars of nations have increased the casualties among those taking part in them, while the sacrifice also falls most heavily upon the very pick of the manhood of the opposing powers.

India Dissatisfied With Present Rule

Desires Measure of Autonomy Granted to Self-Government Dominions.

Toronto.—That the retention of India as an integral part of the British Empire can be secured only by ultimately granting to her that measure of autonomy already enjoyed by the self-government Dominions, is the opinion of Dr. S. E. Datta, a recognized leader of the moderate party in India, who addressed the Canadian Club here.

The address was a notable one in that it came from a native Indian who, although thoroughly in sympathy with the idealistic side of the Nationalist movement in India, has thrown the weight of his influence on the side of constitutional reform under the British Government.

Dr. Datta strenuously combatted the idea that the race now going on in India between constitutional reform on one side and revolution on the other was one that affected the other sections of the Empire merely as spectators. On the contrary, what the other sections of the Empire did, and thought, was of vital consequence.

Japan Selects Delegates

Surprise Caused By Appointment of Prince Tokugawa.

Tokyo.—The Japanese delegates to the Washington Conference on limitation of armaments, will be Prince Iyasato Tokugawa, president of the House of Peers; Vice-Admiral Tominobu Kato, Minister of the Navy, and Baron Kijuro Shidehara, ambassador to the United States. It has been officially announced.

The delegation includes 13 others representing the foreign office, three representing the ministry of finance, twelve the ministry of the navy, and seven the army.

The appointment of Vice-Admiral Kato and that of Ambassador Shidehara had been expected, but the Asahi Shimbun in commenting upon the makeup of the delegation, emphasizes the fact that the appointment of Prince Tokugawa was a great surprise to the nation. It expresses the view that for one thing it embodies a move by Premier Hara to prepare the way for a Tokugawa ministry after the Washington Conference, when the present cabinet, it says, is likely to resign.

Hon. A. J. Balfour Appeals to All Countries For Help.

Geneva.—Speaking in the assembly of the League of Nations on a resolution expressing the regret of the assembly that the reconstruction of Austria's finances had been delayed for a reason it was hoped would shortly be removed, Right Hon. A. J. Balfour said the Allies had done all they could for the restoration of Austria. All of them had released their aliens to that end, he recalled, and he hoped that the Austrian people would not lose their courage. He appealed to all the countries, in the general interest of Europe and for the credit of civilization to do all they could to enable Austria to regain her feet.

World-Record For Altitude

Airman Attained Official Height of 40,800 Feet.

Dayton, Ohio.—Lieut. John A. MacReady, test pilot at McCook Field, shattered the world's altitude record, attaining an official height of 40,800 feet in the same lapar plane used by Major Rudolph G. Schroeder, who set a record of 35,150 feet on February 25, 1920.

Lieut. MacReady was in the air one hour and forty-seven minutes, requiring all, but a few minutes of the total flying time to reach his mark. At 35,000 feet, ice formed on his oxygen tank but he pressed on until the anti-neutrizer registered 41,000 feet. At this point his engine coughed and died. He then glided safely to the ground.

Typhoon In Japan Kills Hundreds

Tokyo.—Several hundred persons have been killed by a typhoon in Central Japan, centring upon Nagasaki, the island of Honshu, where a tidal wave destroyed crops and houses. Several steamers were sunk and many fishermen are missing.

American Ex-Soldier and Daughter Found By Police Launch.

Washington.—Sighted by Chesapeake Bay fishermen five miles off Norfolk, Va., in an open rowboat, in which they had been cruising the waters of the bay, and the Potomac River for sixty-three days, William A. Spencer, ex-soldier, and his ten-year-old daughter, Cora Eleanor, were later located by a police launch and brought to that port after a nation-wide search for weeks, following their mysterious disappearance from this city. Finding of the father and daughter was made known at police headquarters here after notification from the Norfolk authorities.

GOOD! Because Its Fine Qualities Are Preserved by the Sealed Package

Winnipeg.—A reduction amounting to 30 per cent. on all rates on livestock shipments from the prairie provinces to St. Paul and Chicago, has been announced here by the Canadian Pacific Railway. There is no reduction being made below 50 cents per hundred pounds. This year rate will become effective Oct. 5. The statement is issued by the Canadian Pacific Railway says: In view of the fact that cattle are moving from the prairie provinces to St. Paul and Chicago, notwithstanding the Fordney tariff, it is reducing the rates on livestock in line with the reductions made by U.S. railways.

The following are quoted as samples of the new rates: Moose Jaw to St. Paul 55 cents as against the present rate of 68 cents; to Chicago 77 cents as against 90; Calgary and Edmonton to St. Paul, 70 to 12 against 85; to Chicago 52 as against 61.15.

Population Of Two In Lonely Outpost At Findlay Forks

From what is probably one of the loneliest outposts of the Northern Trading Company, Angus Sherwood, manager of the post at Findlay Forks, in the Peace River Pass, brings an interesting story of the country to the west.

Mr. Sherwood, in addition to his duties in connection with the Indian fur trade, is mining recorder, postmaster and any other office necessary to the transaction of business in the particular section of the mountains where his post is located. He is the only permanent white resident in the pass with the exception of his wife, who is also pioneering in the wilderness—a wilderness which without doubt will before very long bear the foot of the railway whistle, as the Peace Pass is the logical egress for the coastal railway.

Going to Edmonton, the trader travelled out from his post via the Peace river and Prince George, and then by the railway. Leaving Findlay Forks, the Peace River was taken for 100 miles, next came 17 miles on the Peace River, and then 85 miles on a chain of lakes and waterways known collectively as the Crooked River, which leads to Summit Lake on the height of land at the Gliscombe portage. From this point to Prince George there is a well made road constructed by the British Columbia Government for a distance of 35 miles connecting the portage with the inland town.

From Prince George to Findlay Forks the journey by canoe is with the stream and occupies 5 days, the return trip taking 9 days, while about 11 or 12 are consumed in the voyage from the C.N.R. railway town to Peace River settlement.

The post buildings of the Northern Trading Company at Findlay Forks are the only sign of civilization at the present time, but during the summer there are numbers of independent miners at work on the bars in the mountain rivers, washing gold. The majority of these, however, go "out" for the winter, some remaining in the district to trap furs. This year there were about 30 prospectors at work. In addition to the men of the mining companies who were engaged in mining operations with machinery, and consequently on a larger scale.

There is placer gold and platinum to be had, states Mr. Sherwood, and even using the crude methods of the average prospector, the experienced men were able to make wages, but it is a country in which a greenhorn can readily starve to death.

About 300 Indian hunters in the vicinity of the Forks, these natives being of the Silecanut nation, and not a very high type of aboriginal. They live entirely on a straight diet of meat and fish, and during the season kill large quantities of deer.

When the natives come in to trade their furs it is the usual custom to purchase flour, beans and other delicacies of the white man. This being accomplished, they make camp and remain at the post until all the strange edibles are consumed, after which they once more take to the hunting trails, and the fish and meat diet.

The climate on the whole is milder than that of the Edmonton district, due to the fact that the Forks is in the Chinook belt. The deepest snow which Mr. Sherwood remembers is thirty inches and the coldest thirty-one degrees below zero.

A garden is kept at the post, and in addition to the usual hardy northern vegetables, cucumbers, green corn and other delicate plants have been raised, but it is rarely that they ripen. Usually seven or eight head of ponies belonging to the prospectors are wintered in the district, and oats have been grown successfully on the river flats, to feed them.

There is considerable game in the vicinity of the Forks, moose in particular, forming the principal diet of the Indians. Each Indian kills on an average of 4 moose per year, in addition to caribou and other game. In the mountains caribou are plentiful as well as mountain sheep and goats, while bears are to be found in considerable numbers at certain seasons.

Goat Keeping Is Good Industry

Could Be Kept in Districts Unsuitable For Cows.

Goat keeping is an industry worthy of the attention of our citizens. In many cases where a family is situated that the keeping of a cow is impossible, a goat would furnish it with a class of milk which is especially adapted for the use of children—a class of milk impossible to procure otherwise. The absence of tuberculosis in the goat is generally accepted. This, in itself, should be sufficient to warrant the development of the industry. Besides, the goat could be kept to great advantage in districts entirely unsuitable for cows, both in rural districts and in the suburbs of our towns and cities.

Report Rich Silver Deposit

Extensive Body of Ore in Alice Arm District.

Discovery of rich silver ore on the Kitimat River, Alice Arm district, in claims close to the famous Dolly Varden Mine, is reported. Three general samples, taken free from native silver average more than one hundred ounces to the ton, and the body of ore of this richness is said to be very extensive. It has an average width of twenty-two inches and adjoins lower grade ore, which carries good milling values.

Requests League to Suspend Action

Hungary has asked the assembly of the League of Nations to suspend action on her application for admission to the League until next year.

Coun. Albert Apponyi, the Hungarian delegate at Geneva, wrote to President Van Karnebeck, that on account of the trouble concerning Bergianina, being awarded to Austria by the Trianon Treaty, Hungary prefers to wait.

Hon. T. D. Pattullo, Minister of Lands in the British Columbia Ministry, said, recently that the Campbell River power of Vancouver Island would be developed by British interests. Engineers are leaving soon to collect final data and complete power development plans.

Thought of Them All.

Beef Rings Are Well Established

Reports of Activities in Saskatchewan Contain Valuable Pointers.

A short time ago a circular letter was sent out from the Co-operation and Markets Branch to the secretaries of beef rings in Saskatchewan, asking them to be good enough to furnish a statement of their activities. These beef rings are fairly well established in this province, but some of the reports are rather surprising, while others contain valuable pointers. One secretary cannot suggest any improvement in the method, and in this ring during the hot weather only two year-olds are killed. Another points out that success or failure depends almost entirely on the choice of a butcher. "A man too timid," says this secretary, "to reject an unfit animal is useless, and to allot the duty to a committee would be to make the working of the ring too cumbersome."

Canned Dogs Frighten Thieves.

An old-fashioned talking machine, rigged in a beehive, with records of violent barking by two tormented dogs, is the police protection Edward Delle uses in his orchard and vineyard at Billah, Wash. The record is operated by an electric attachment and if an automobile is heard to slow down, where the orchard touches the highway, the canned dog music is turned loose. It has not yet been discovered that might take place in outlying districts.

New York C. P. R. Building

Great interest is being taken by New York transportation and real estate circles in the building taken by the Canadian Pacific Railway to concentrate its various offices into one building close to the Grand Central Station.

The Canadian Pacific deal, which has required an entire year to consummate, on account of its elaborate ramifications, involves a lease from the Madison Avenue Office, Inc., the holding corporation for the Fifth Church of Christ, Scientist, of a large store, basement and almost the entire second floor of the 44th Street portion of this twenty-one story building; and also involves an investment of considerable proportions by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company in the building itself, in consideration of which the name of the building will be changed from "Madison Avenue Offices," or, as it has sometimes been referred to, the "Christian Science Building," and will be renamed the "Canadian Pacific Building."

The area of the plot on which the building stands covers over 31,000 square feet, and is situated directly opposite the Hotel Baltimore on the east, Brooks Brothers' Building to the north and the old Hotel Manhattan to the south.

The Canadian Pacific Railway will occupy the store, basement and second floor, all that part of the building on which only a year ago stood St. Bartholomew's Church, demolished last April, to make way

Professor Cameron Gives Interesting Suggestions On Insect Control Problem

The Development of Entomology in Saskatchewan was the subject chosen by D. A. E. Cameron, Professor of Zoology, University of Saskatchewan, at the Agricultural Conference at Saskatoon.

"It was not until 1917," said Professor Cameron, "that the Federal Entomological Branch delegated one of its officers to this province, and owing to the entomological problems that arose at that time an agreement was made between the University authorities and the Federal Department of Agriculture that the Entomological Branch should have a permanent representative in the province to be associated with the university."

Although not stated by the Federal Entomological Branch, it was intended that their representative should devote his time principally to research work on any entomological problem that required development from time to time, but in addition to this he had to undertake a large amount of extension work, by correspondence with the farmers and by personal visits to the infested areas, and being unaided it was practically impossible for him to keep in touch with the outbreaks that might take place in outlying districts.

The grasshopper plague was the real awakening in this Province of an interest in entomology as a subject for serious study, and not as a minor adjunct of the other branches of agriculture. The problems of the entomologist are not confined to the protection of our crops, but in the realm of veterinary and medical entomology there are urgent demands for scientists equipped with the necessary training to investigate injurious species of insects that are detrimental to stock and human welfare. It was not surprising that during the grasshopper plague that the Provincial Department of Agriculture could not find in the Province a trained field assistant in entomology. Although I speak without authority I am sure that if it could be plainly shown that there is a need for an extension of entomological teaching, that University will submit the question to its sympathetic consideration because this lack of trained entomologists is a problem that not only affects Saskatchewan but affects the country at large. In addition to purely cultural subjects the trained entomologist must have more than a speaking acquaintance with the whole field of biology as well as the related sciences of physics and chemistry.

The problem of insect control is intimately related to agriculture, horticulture, including fruit growing, forestry, public health and other human activities and it is regrettable to note that Saskatchewan loses from ten to twenty-five per cent. of the value of her farm crops due to the activities of harmful insects. It is safe to say that with our present knowledge of the methods of insect control, a saving of at least thirty per cent. could be effected, and with an increased knowledge this percentage will undoubtedly be increased, but insect control does not always resolve itself into one of a careful watch of our native insects, but the problems of control pests within our territory have been imported, such as the Hessian fly, wheat midge and the Colorado potato beetle.

As the prosperity of the country is founded upon agriculture, it is only right to see that all reasonable measures conducive to the maintenance of this prosperity be adopted. Professor Cameron then went on to say that "in virtue of my acquaintance with the entomological conditions prevailing in this province, I would tender the following suggestions for your consideration." Facilities for research work within the Province on insects of economic importance should be extended; establishment of short-course lectures on agricultural entomology in our schools; the provision of a course of advanced entomology at the University; the value of inventing special insecticides should be enhanced by the establishment of temporary field laboratories in districts affected by particular pests.

Vast Acreage in Saskatchewan

Comparatively few people appreciate the undeveloped agricultural possibilities of the American continent. Take the Province of Saskatchewan for example. In that Province 284,156,000 bushels of wheat, barley and oats have been produced in a single year from about one-third of the area suitable for farming. The vast acreage awaiting cultivation has been surveyed and the exact location of each section is shown in an elaborately prepared map just issued by the Natural Resources Branch of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, Canada. Supplementary to this map are booklets giving detailed information by districts concerning the land, the name and address of each owner, nature of soil, value of farm buildings, distance from railway, etc. The map and booklets, prepared with the most meticulous regard for accuracy, are for free distribution to readers of this paper and will be sent on application to the branch mentioned above.

Planting Sockeye Eggs

Will Aid in Restoring Run of Fraser River.

Planting sockeye eggs, such as one plants potatoes or any other seed, is one of the new methods in use in connection with the artificial propagation of the king of salmon. The eggs are planted under gravel. This is akin to the conditions under which the fish are hatched by natural means and is expected to yield better results than were possible before. It is anticipated that this method will greatly aid in restoring the sockeye run of the Fraser River to a sound basis.

GUARD THE CHILDREN FROM AUTUMN COLDS

The Fall is the most severe season of the year for colds—one day is warm, the next cold and wet, and unless the mother is on her guard, the little ones are infected with colds that may hang on all winter. Baby's Own Tablets are mothers' best friend. They act as a gentle laxative, keeping the bowels and stomach free and sweet. An occasional dose of the Tablets will prevent colds, or if it does come on suddenly their prompt use will relieve the baby. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Proves Value of Irrigation.

Patricia, Alberta, is a standing testimony to the value of irrigation in Southern Alberta. Two years ago its site was unbroken prairie and its surrounding land virgin to the horizon. To-day there are twenty thousand acres under cultivation in the district directly tributary to the thriving settlement which has most civic improvements and advantages.

Takes Electricity From Air

New Generator Consists of Wire, Iron and Minerals.

Demonstrations have been made on the streets of Denver of a new electric generator that is claimed by the inventors to take electricity from the air.

The inventors are J. E. Ammann, of Denver, and his brother, C. E. Ammann, of Spokane, Wash.

To demonstrate, the brothers borrowed an old electric auto, took out the batteries and after roping their new "atmospheric generator" fast, they got in and rode off at a high speed.

"There is nothing inside the drum that moves; the contents consist only of iron, wire and minerals," says C. E. Ammann.

"It can be used to drive any electrical apparatus and can be made in any size."

The brothers are closely guarding their secret, and even take their "brain-child" when it is not in use, to their room in the Argonaut Hotel. So far the brothers have not offered to sell their proposition.

Electrical men in Denver are waiting "to be shown," but they grant the thing works.

ADVICE FOR BACKACHE

When lifting hurts, when lifting and bending causes distress that's the time to rub in lots of "Nerviline." Usually a couple of applications brings grateful relief. No liniment more soothing, more certain to all muscular rheumatic, or sciatic pains. Thousands of homes rely on good old Nerviline for cramps, colic, dysentery and external muscular pains. Large 35 cent bottle for sale everywhere.

The Impediment.

The clergyman was solemnizing the marriage of an elderly couple the other day in the fane of Lincolnshire. All went well until he required and charged them both that if they knew of any impediment why they might not be lawfully joined together in matrimony they were to confess it. "I'm all right, mister," said the bridegroom, "but Martha, she licks a bit."

Boot Factory For Calgary

Financed by British Interests Would Employ Over 300 Men.

If the City Council approves of tentative offers made by the commission-ers, Calgary will have a boot factory in a short time, employing more than 300 men. The concern which may go there is financed by British interests and the city commissioners have recommended that a year lease, on easy terms, be granted.

New Lamp Burns 94% Air

Beats Electric Or Gas.

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. Government and is leading universities and found to be superior to 100 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94% air and 6% common kerosene (coal-oil).

The inventor, T. V. Johnson, 595 McDermott Ave., Winnipeg, is offering to send a lamp on 10 days' FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him to-day for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $200 to $500 per month.

No Rest With Asthma. Asthma usually attacks at the one time when rest is needed most. Hence the loss of strength, the nervous debility, the loss of flesh and other evils which must be expected unless relief is secured. Fortunately relief is possible. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy has proved its merit through years of service. A trial will surely convince you.

Lace Trimmed Nightgown Of Crepe de Chine

By Marie Belmont

The tendencies in dress are often reflected in other realms of apparel. The nightgown illustrated is fashioned from a rich quality of flesh-colored crepe de chine. It repeats the style tendency of the frock in the sashes that are tied at its side. These are made of double faced ribbons which show pale blue on one side and flesh on the other. The square cut decolletage is outlined with fine val lace and insertion and partly hidden under the fine mesh of the lace appears the narrow ribbon which is tied in a dainty bow in the centre front.

Mrs. Lilian Taylor Tells How Cuticura Healed Her Baby

"Our baby was two weeks old when his face became very red and terribly itchy, and he was fairly crazy rubbing and scratching till the skin broke and bled. He could not sleep, and did nothing but cry. His face looked as though he might be disfigured for life."

"I thought I would give Cuticura Soap and Ointment a trial. I found the free sample so good that I bought more and two cakes of Cuticura Soap and a fifty cent box of Cuticura Ointment healed him." (Signed) Mrs. Lilian M. Taylor, Box 99, Brucebridge, Muskoka, Ont., Dec. 30, '18.
